

Library renovation

Brent Lambert

memory/ text /room Lesley Graham

Background : model

Andy Tsao

For some time now, the Second Year studio has followed a pattern of a series of short projects in the first term followed by a longer one in the second which emphasizes design development at different scales. The first term focuses on the theme of "house", beginning with the design of a room, progressing to the research and investigation of houses of the modern movement, and finally the last project of the term concentrates on the design of a small dwelling.

Pleasure house Timothy Lo

Pleasure house Brent Lambert

Background: Conceptual drawing

Chris Brett

The second term allows students to start to deal with the themes of "adaptation" and "city" within the first project, an intervention into an existing building or site. The final project of the second term involves the design of a public building situated in the city, and in doing so introduces the students to the urban design issues to be further explored in Third Year.